Mr. Obama's inability to "man up" to the malfeasance connected with his administration, coupled with an inability to tell the truth, appears to be a pathological characteristic of his presidency.

With the election of her husband, Michelle Obama said, "For the first time in my life, I am proud of my country." After America has been repeatedly lied to by President Obama, who falsely claimed that you could keep your doctor and your health insurance, is the first lady still proud?

Fortunately for the Obama family, they are exempt from Obamacare. Apparently the cook is too good to sit at the same table with the proletariat.

Republican attempts to remove the special carve-outs for Congress under Obamacare were blocked in a party-line vote by the Democratic majority. Is there no limit to the hypocrisy of this president and the Democratic Party? It sure doesn't look like it!

If you have employer-based insurance, get ready: The other shoe has yet to drop. Judging from five years of experience with the veracity of this administration, can you seriously trust anything they say?
