

White House hubris - Hutchinson News, The (KS) - February 5, 2012

The keystone pipeline was one of the most well studied, environmentally safe projects in modern history. It was not blocked by Obama because of environmental concerns, it was simply another casualty in a long list of cynical vote-getting ploys to appease Obama's radical base of support, the American People be damned.

It is clear: Our Chicago politician considers his re-election more important than American jobs or energy independence. Better to dump billions into Solyndra and a host of other feel-good, politically correct scams.

This administration has gone beyond corrupt or incompetent; it is placing the survival of the United States in jeopardy. The decline of our country pivots around one point - the failed policies of the Obama administration.

The Chinese laugh while they will fuel their economy with Canadian oil that should have been flowing into the heart of American industry.
